Grading Policy: Your performance will be judged both objectively and in comparison to your peers.

Homework: Homework exercises will be posted on the course website. Homework is not mandatory, but working on the problems is recommended.

Quizzes: There will be short 5-10 minute quizzes throughout the semester. Quiz questions will be based on the homework. You can make up at most one missed quiz. Arrangements for a make up quiz must be made in a timely manner.

Exams: There will be two in-class midterms and a final. The two midterms will not be cumulative. The final will be weighted more heavily on the material not tested on the two midterms. Make-up exams must be arranged in advance, no later than one week before the exam date.

Succeeding in Class: Spend time and work hard outside of class reviewing the material. Students spend 150 minutes per week in class, and should expect to spend another 300-450 minutes per week outside of class on this course alone.

Academic Integrity: Breaches of academic honesty and cases of academic misconduct will not be tolerated and will be treated following university rules and regulations.
